CONVENTION CENTER

THE GERRY ROXAS FOUNDATION

The Gerry Roxas Foundation (GRF) is one of the oldest foundations in the Philippines. It was founded by the late Senator Gerry Roxas in 1958 and initially focused on providing educational assistance for youth in marginalized communities. It later on expanded with the launch of the Gerry Roxas Leadership Awards, an honor given to outstanding high school students upon graduation. Over the years, as its organizational competencies grew, GRF evolved into a premier social development institution with programs in leadership development, barangay justice, community outreach and governance.

For more than 20 years, GRF has been a recipient of various financial and technical awards from local and international partners. In 2013, GRF was awarded a $24 M contract by USAID to implement Phil-Am Fund, a grant-making facility which aims to assist private sector organizations implement projects on biodiversity, education, anti-trafficking, governance and economic growth. Working with various stakeholders allowed GRF to build the capacities of local government units, government agencies and civil society organizations in various aspects of program management and development.

The establishment of the Gerry Roxas Training and Convention Center (GRTCC) with support from USAID in 1998 is our continuing legacy in capacity building to our partners. It is a venue for leaders in government, business, civil society and communities to “shape ideas” into concrete and sustainable actions for positive change. With upgraded facilities and amenities and the wealth of experience gained by GRF in implementing projects, the relaunch of the Center in 2016 is envisioned to reach out to a broader clientele base and sustain our vision of enabling leaders for nation-building.
